

temahome.
living your dreams

We are in over 40 countries, but the place we really want to be is in your home.

At TemaHome, when we begin designing a product for your home, we think of a solution that embodies style, comfort and a certain degree of edginess. We do this because we believe that our customers like their homes to have a distinct look and feel, which is, in a way, an extension of their own personal lifestyle and individuality.

TemaHome is composed of a group of professionals that love design and quality lifestyle. We are a closeknit group and, just like you, as individuals, we like to buy from companies that generate good feelings and offer beautiful products that enrich our lives.

The background is a complex geometric composition. It features a grid of squares, some of which contain a light-colored wood grain texture. These are interspersed with solid black and white shapes. Large, semi-circular and quarter-circular black and white elements overlap the grid, creating a layered, architectural feel. The word 'DINING' is centered within one of the black semi-circular shapes.

The background is a dark, textured surface, possibly black or very dark brown. Overlaid on this are several large, semi-transparent shapes. There are four large, rounded rectangular areas with a light brown wood grain texture. These are arranged in a 2x2 grid, but they are not perfectly aligned, creating an offset effect. Additionally, there are several black and white geometric shapes. A large white circle is in the upper right. A large black circle is in the lower left. A white triangle is in the center, pointing towards the bottom right. A black triangle is in the upper left. # The Lisbon Collection

Lisbon brilliant city full of life, where the shining lights and the unrest of every corner washes away all your sins. A place of many contrasts, where the new meets the old and the contemporary flirts with the classic. Birthplace of a collection identified by its bold, daring lines, bearing the mark of today's greatest mind of Portuguese design. Every single piece in the collection is exclusive in the true sense of the world. Made in limited quantities, all items are numbered and bear the signature of its designer.

HANDLE & BABY HANDLE Fernando Brizio

The Handle stool was initially developed to install "the perfect skin" concept, presented at the 2000 "Essere Ben Essere", Triennale in Milan. Handle is made of wood and covered with fabric featuring a handle loop facilitating its transport and allowing you to hang it on a wall or hat rack.

TAVARES

Marco Sousa Santos

Developed by request of a landmark Lisbon restaurant bearing the same name, the Tavares chair is an object of thoughtful geometric lines, a "Shell" as a chair. Built in steel lacquered black or white, its forms reveal the simplicity of an object that integrates with its surrounding architecture defining a common space identity.

FUROSHIKI

Miguel Vieira Baptista

In references to the Japanese wrapping technique, that protects objects for transport, the Furoshiki looks like a folded cloth. The carpet's pattern combines 6 different colours and is produced by hand in 100% wool from New Zealand.

SCATOLA ARMONICA

Miguel Vieira Baptista

Using a musical instrument box as inspiration, the Scatola Armonica, has cut out designs on its doors which were based on the paper fold and cut technique. These laser made cut outs are similar to those of some musical instrument boxes and substitute knobs with which to open the sideboard.

GEM

Filipe Alarcão

The form of the Gem tables suggests a meticulously cut and polished crystal which allows for a different perspective from all angles. The Gem coffee table exists in two versions, square and rectangular, and is produced in Montelli. Its design, characterized by lateral cut facets, which alternate between empty and solid planes, is made possible by the properties of the material used which allows for superior precision in cut glue methods.

Our fields are more green, Our skies are more blue.

Portugal is a land of lush green vegetation and beautiful clear blue seas. Our green heritage and deep respect for Mother Nature is a constant in our every day life. The Portuguese soul has always been in balance with the environment, well before it became a global trend. The essence of our eco-friendly policy is to co-exist in harmony with the natural environment and eco-system. With this principle, we apply four basic concepts in everything we do. They are:

1. We focus in “producing more from less” and upgrading resource productivity, “to reduce the material intensity and energy of commodities. Dedicated to cut the consumption of unnecessary raw material, processes, and energy, always producing the lowest quantity of waste material.
2. We pay attention to the concept of “design for environment” during the development process, and produce eco-friendly products.
3. We operate a strict quality control department that monitors incoming resources assuring that no protected wood species are ever used in our products and that all of our vendors comply with their environmental regulations.
4. We are active members of the EU’s GreenDot society. A Pro Europe (Packaging Recovery Organization Europe) initiative for recycling natural resources.

At TemaHome, we believe in building a better tomorrow, today.

TemaHome as received the ISO 9001 certification by the International Standard Organization (Geneva) to guarantee the quality and resistance of our products. As a direct result of our efforts to make our company a better one, we also received the ISO 14001 certification attesting our continuous commitment to minimize our collective environmental footprint and maximize our social responsibility. This implies - among other things - that we promote sustainability of resources, by using materials originating from forest reserves that are safeguarded and managed.

Take good care of your investment.

Keeping your furniture looking beautiful doesn't take much time or effort. Wood furniture is not only beautiful but durable when cared for properly. First, try not to place it too closely to a heater vent as the dry heat could cause the wood to split or warp.

Approximately one-third of the cost of wooden furniture has to do with the process used to color and seal the finish and one of the basics of keeping the finish intact is to dust it regularly. Even a small amount of dust can actually create small scratches in the finish which eventually expose the wood, making it vulnerable to further damage.

You can reduce dust damage by simply using a soft cloth, slightly dampened, helping to trap dust instead of sending it airborne (landing it right back on your furniture). Avoid the multi-purpose cleaners – these weren't made for the finish on fine furniture, but for more durable surfaces like plastic and enameling. Using one of the new treated wipes to dust your furniture is a benefit since they're designed to collect the dust rather than pushing them off the wood and back into the air again.

Polishing your furniture, even lightly will end creating the need to dust twice as often. Polishers attract dust rather than repelling it, so while the furniture will sparkle and look wonderful right after it's been polished, it will quickly look dusty again and some of that dust will mix in with the oil, making the furniture increasingly difficult to clean and easier to scratch.

Small scratches can be relatively easy to fix: just find a wax stick at your local hardware store that most closely matches the color of your wood. Simply "color" in the scratch and you're done. The wax will help protect the wood from the elements and the color should hide the scratch as well. Go ahead and re-wax this area of the furniture again, but make sure that the wax stick covered in the scratch and didn't just put a light bit of color over the exposed wood. Make sure the colored wax is applied heavily enough to match the depth of the scratch and create a flat surface again.

The color and grain differences are characteristic of natural wood. As it is exposed to sunlight, wood darkens as a result of oxidization.

In order to ensure that the product darkens uniformly, we recommend that objects placed on the surface be moved frequently during the first few months.

Located less than an hour from Lisbon, on the Tróia Peninsula, between the Sado Estuary and the Arrábida Natural Park, you will find a paradise where the words Nature and Leisure are highlighted. A resort with an 18-hole golf course, marina, tourist apartments, hotels, restaurants, beaches and cycle path - troiaresort is the name of this place. It was chosen for its natural and architectural beauty that meets the requirements outlined by TemaHome for the new catalogue. There was a special care to create environments that reflect spaces closer to the day-to-day life. Only with the cooperation of the troiaresort team was possible to fulfil our goal.
